The smallness of the circle, soo, is by no means a fair indication of the feeling prevailing in the violaity. In this and the adjoining counties the people are stanch friends of Iriah freedom, and profess themselves in favor of any measure by which the wrongs of a a very substantial and generous manner, receiving hem into their houses in the most hospitable manner, not in fact greatuitously feeding them during the greater art of their stay. This is, however, patiroly conditional upon the non-interference of the Emited States government. If the President interferes, it is universally conceded that failure is inevitable.

At the close of the demonstration last year about swenty wagon loads of arms and ammunition, which had been confiscated by the government, were returned to the Fraise authorities. Although no one seems exactly to know where these stores are, it is positively stated that they have never been removed from the county, and that, when needed, they can be readily produced, at the time of their return a promise was demanded by the government, and given, that they should not be used for any warlike purpose. Like all enforced promises, however, this pledge will not prohably be very sigidly observed.

There is no point on the border so well adapted as a base for Fenian operations as Maiona. Although within a few hours march of the boundary line, there is no direct communication with Canada. The border line for a few miles immediately north of the town passes through an uncleared forest. These woods are, however, easily penetrated, and a ganileman here, of considerable military experience, and who would undoubtedly co-operate with the Fenians in hay active movement, although he is not now a member of the Brotherhood, sates confidently that he could lead live thousand men ever the border at this point with almost complete secrecy. Until the St. Lawrence were reached, no obstacle of any importance would present leading, and, if the incursion were suddenly and quietly made, it is almost certain that the river might be crossed before the British gunbouts could be despatched to dispute the passage. If an invasion is really made this year—and there are certain indications all along the leavest that one is contamplated—the first serious movement will prebably be the one above suggested.

The Indian Fight in the Rocky Mountains.

[From the Hartford Courant, May 29.]
Acting Governor Maagher, of Montana, has undertaken to carry on a war on his own hook. He is collecting an army, has assumed command of it, has issued a declaration of war and is about to march against the enemy. It is singular how, with each advancing wave of civilization, this old fight with the aboriginal races has to be fought over again. The proclamation of Gen. Meagher, allowing for the difference of the times, reads as if it might have been issued by one of our old colonial magistrates two hundred and thirty years ago, just before staiwart Captain John Mason sailed down the Connecticut, with his ninety white men and seventy friendly Incut, with his ninety white men and seventy friendly In-dians, on his way to the land of the Pequota.

The attendance of members at the meeting or the above Society last night was comparatively small, owing, possibly, to the change relative to holding weekly in place of semi-monthly meetings. The question of sending delegates to the proposed Eight Hour Convention was taken up for discussion, when it was resolved to leave the matter in the hands of the President, the prevailing sentiment, however, being in favor, in consequence of the youth and monetary condition of the organization, of taking no definite action in the matter. After transacting some routuse business the meeting adjourned.
